OBJECTIVE

The application of technology in education has opened doors to a whole new world of learning where a click of mouse, a touch of a finger or new vision can do wonders with a positive influence on learning strategies and outcomes. With impetus on providing quality education and creating world-class leaders, the focus in education has now shifted from traditional teaching to transformation of classrooms into centres of learning (i.e. Smart Classrooms) where learners as well as educators become adept in using and mastering technology as a tool for teaching and learning.

Regardless of the institutional approach utilized, the purpose of technology in education is to prepare students to become technologically literate citizens. For this, attitude towards technology needs to be developed in the field of education to enhance the quality of learning outcomes by providing an opportunity to the students for independent and self-paced learning. The prospective students and teacher educators need to be sensitized towards technology for ensuring effective communication, interaction, improved learning environment and to keep the students abreast of the changing scenario in higher education, so as to keep them paced with the technological developments in the field of education. One of the goals of higher education is to enable the students and teacher educators to understand, control and use this technology. For training them to use this technology, it becomes apparent that the attitude of students and teacher educators should be assessed and requisite attitude towards technology should be developed, thereby emphasizing its importance for teacher educators. Also, the users need to be regularly apprised of the innovations in educational technology for facilitating and improving teaching-learning process in different disciplines.

In short, the need of the hour is to shift from remembering to understanding, accepting to questioning and reading to reflecting. Students need to understand basic concepts, but they also need to think, reflect and enquire. Our programmes are designed to achieve the same.
